

“HPR Paw Lift” Guidelines.

The mission of our volunteer pilots is primarily to get animals to safety by transporting them from point A to point B.

Depending on each mission, the volunteer pilot may choose to only transport supplies to the affected areas. These supplies will be strictly for animals, such food, water, crates, litter, medical supplies, etc.

Pilots will only fly to and from designated airports. They will not drop the animals or supplies at your home or any other place. It is the responsibility of the ground personnel to meet the pilot on time at the correct destination in order for the mission to be a success.

There will be no transferring of crates at airports or in transit. This is to prevent animals from bolting and being lost or injured.

Pilots will receive the animals already crated in airline approved carriers and with the required health certificates from a licensed veterinarian.

If the disaster area has been completely devastated sometimes obtaining a health certificate for the animal will not be possible, as veterinarians cannot get to the area to issue them and local veterinary clinics will be not be open. In this case it will be up to the volunteer pilot to make the determination whether or not to fly the animal.

Upon arrival to the destination ground personnel must be present to receive the animal. Receiving ground personnel must allow plenty of time in case of a delay. In order to prevent mishaps, never show up in a hurry to receive an animal.

At departure the same guidelines apply. Ground personnel handing over an animal must meet me at the airport with the animal and all necessary documents at least 1 hour before the flight departs.

If the pilot is transporting only supplies, ground personnel must be there to hand them to the pilot as well as to receive them upon arrival.

Ground transport for animals and supplies is not the responsibility of the pilot.

Pilots will always have the last say in determining safe procedures for airlifting an animal.

HPR will only coordinate the air lift with the pilots and is up to each pilot to put in place the rules and regulations for his or her mission.
